CHARGED WITH AN

INDECENT ASSAULT. Greeneville Young Man Held Under $500 Bonds Until Wednesday-Mo-Nally Found Guilty and Fined.

In the city court on Monday morning George Sorter of Greeneville was pre-sented, charged with indecent assault. His case was continued until Wednes-day morning under bends of $500. Judge Brown gave his decision in the case against James McNally of Greeneville charged with salling flower Greeneville, charged with selling liquor on Sunday, finding him guilty and fin-ing him $50 and costs. The accused took an appeal and furnished bonds.

In his finding Judge Brown said in It would be a sad condition of things, as it seems to me, if the rule is to be established that a licensed dealer cannot get a reputation for Sunday sales and the enforcement of the law against Sunday sales of intoxicating liquors will be made even more difficult than it now is, if this rule is to prevail.

In the case on trial several witnesses, including officers and reputable citizens, testify as to the reputation of Sunday sales by the accused at his place. In addition to this testimony two officers state that they counted fifty-sight persons, entering these Afty-eight persons entering these premises by back ways on the 6th day of June. Some of these persons showed intoxication. With no explanation or denial on part of the accused can it be reasonably urged that this is not corroborative evidence of a Sunday eputation of even a licensed dealer? It has been said that the Mahoney case was nolled in the court above. That fact alone ought, it seems to me to have no influence upon the court's decision in this case. It seems the decision in this case. It seems the pleas saw fit to recommend a noile of that case. The court simply consented to his recommendation. What a jury would have done in the case had it been carefully presented to them remains an unknown quantity.

I am informed by officers that since the prosecution of Mahoney Sunday conditions in that locality are very different than they were before the prosecution; comparatively few persons now frequent said place on Sunday and no Sunday drunks have since year found. unday drunks have since been found a that locality,

It is my duty as it appears to me after a careful consideration of this case to find the accused guilty. I find him guilty and impose a fine of $50. CLOSE OF SEASON.

The committee, of course, decided they could not entertain these propositions. There was a proposition to have a large number of kites sent up with flags, many of these being grotesque, but that idea was deemed too expensive, aithough attractive. sive, although attractive.

Historical Committee Meeting.

The historical committee meeting on Monday afternoon was presided over by Chairman Gulliver, and lasted two hours, during which time many matters were gone over. The committes will issue a booklet giving a short, abbreviated account of the founders, the early settlers, old houses and men connected with the revolution, where they lived, or were born, and what connection they had with the town. The old taverns will be looked up and all will be marked, although many points in the center of the city will not be included. The old cemetery sites will be marked. The Post-Gager burying ground, where stands the Mason monument, and which was given in 1561 will be marked. It is here that many of the founders were buried, although there are no gravestones. There will be one signboard for that. There will be another for the burying grounds which was part of the house lot of Rev. James Fitch, given in 1669, which is reached from Contester lane part to Young's store. It was in this old part that the first male child born here was buried and a few graves of founders will be marked. For the Huntington or modern part of the old burying ground, the entrance to which is from Town street, there will also receive markers. The old schools, early industries and homes of the prominent people of the early times will also receive markers. It is thought there will be about 150 wooden markers made and that the booklet will contain about thirty pages.
